

The assistant checks every item against the rules before asking for confirmation. Results are recorded, and a rejected wording can be kept when the reader gives a reason.

Sources are verified word for word.

A source names the page and the block it was taken from, so that the reader can open the material at that place.